So he's popped the question (or maybe you have...its the 21st century after all!) You've chosen the person you want to spend the rest of your life with...now comes an even more important decision - your make-up! Ok, it is maybe not more important than the groom but it's up there with the big choices. You want to look your most beautiful but also look like yourself. Here are a few ideas to inspire you...

If it's a smokey eye you're after, they don't always have to consist of charcoal or grey shades. Use a soft green shadow to create the same effect while also adding some colour. Compliment the look with a peach blush over your cheeks and a soft blushing nude tone over your lips.

It may be your wedding day but lots of brides prefer a natural, dewy skin and almost no make-up look. It's your wedding so you call the shots and you don't have to go all out when it comes to your makeup if you don't want to. If you prefer a no make-up look, pair a neutral taupe eye shadow with a taupe lipstick and a touch of blush.

For a subtle but show-stopping look go for bronze shades on your eyes, cheeks and lips. This look works especially well with a bit of a tan. Blue eyes look sensational with bronze tones too.

If bronze isn't your thing then maybe a soft smokey look with dusty rose and plum tones on your lids, cheeks and lips for a girly yet sophisticated effect.

We all love a healthy glow and a little highlight never hurt anyone. It picks up the light beautifully and gives you glowing skin and cheekbones to die for. Pair this with soft pinks and corals on the eyes, peach blush and soft coral lips for a stunning look.

Keeping it simple with subtly lined lids, softly blushed cheeks and a strong lip colour is classic, elegant and also breathtakingly beautiful.

If you're confident with make-up and normally wear a smokey eye and bold red lip then don't be scared to wear that look on your wedding day. One of my favourites, it's the ultimate glam. However if it's not a normal look you wear, don't let your wedding day be the day you start experimenting.

When you come for your trial I'll help you to make the right choices to suit your skin tone, face shape, eye shape etc and also create a look that compliments your dress, hair, jewellery and overall look. For more information about how to book please contact me ASAP. Dates book up fast ladies!
